The Dàojiào wǔpài dānfǎ jīngxuǎn 道教五派丹法精選 (Compilation of Alchemical Methods from the Five Lineages of Daoism; abbrev. JX) is an “extra-canonical” and “supplemental” Daoist textual collection. It specifically focuses on works related to Daoist internal alchemy (nèidān 內丹). The collection was edited by Wáng Mù 王沐 (1908-1992), a lay Lóngmén 龍門 (Dragon Gate) Daoist initiate, scholar-practitioner and teacher of internal alchemy, and one-time executive director of the Zhōngguó dàojiào xiéhuì 中國道教協會 (Chinese Daoist/Taoist Association). Consisting of five volumes, the collection was published by the Zhōngyī gǔjí chūbǎn shè (Běijīng) in 1989. Partially paralleling and perhaps modelled on the so-called Five Houses of Chán (Zen) Buddhism, the “five lineages” (wǔpài 五派) of the title is a particular construction of the Daoist nèidān sub-tradition. The latter is sometimes discussed in terms of three major “schools” (zōng 宗), namely, Zhōng-Lǚ 鍾呂, Běizōng 北宗 (Northern School; a.k.a. Quánzhēn 全真 [Complete Perfection]), and Nánzōng 南宗 (Southern School), with the latter two traditionally viewed as derivative of the former. These are further divided into the so-called “five lineages”: (1) Northern, a.k.a. Lóngmén, especially associated with Qiū Chǔjī 丘處機 (Chángchūn 長春 [Perpetual Spring]; 1148-1227); (2) Southern, associated with Zhāng Bódūān 張伯端 (Zǐyáng 紫陽 [Purple Yang]; d. 1082); (3) Eastern, associated with Lù Xīxīng 陸西星 (1520-1606), a.k.a. Lù Qiánxū 陸潛虛; (4) Western, associated with Lǐ Xīyuè 李西月 (1806-1856), a.k.a. Lǐ Hánxū 李涵虛; and (5) Central, associated with Lǐ Dào chún 李道純 (Yíngchán 瑩蟾 [Shining Toad]; fl. 1288-1306). The Dàojiào wǔpài dānfǎ jīngxuǎn gathers a variety of texts from the Daoist Canon as well as some “extra-canonical” late imperial texts. The latter include, for example, one text (JX 38) by Wǔ Shǒuyáng 伍守陽 (Chōngxū 沖虛 [Infused Emptiness]; 1563-1644), a Lóngmén monk and eventual patriarch of the Wǔ-Liǔ 伍柳 sub-lineage, and three texts (JX 31, 41, 42) by Liú Yīmíng 劉一明 (Wùyuan 悟元 [Awakening-to-the-Origin]; 1734-1821), an eleventh-generation Lóngmén monk. There are 42 total texts according to the present index.

This index includes the associated JX number, the volume and starting page number of each associated text, as well as cross-listed catalogue numbers based on my Title Index to Daoist Collections (2002; abbrev. TIDC). The associated abbreviations are as follows:

- DZ Dào zàng 道藏 (Daoist Canon; dat. 1445/1607)
QYC Qì gōng yǎng shēng cóng shū 氣功養生叢書 (Collected Works on Qigong and Nourishing Life; dat. 1990)
ZW Zàng wài dào shū 藏外道書 (Daoist Texts Outside the Canon; dat. 1992/1994)

DZ numbers parallel those of Kristofer Schipper 施舟人 (1934-2021) and his colleagues, namely, as first established in the Concordance du Tao-tsang: Titres des ouvrages (1975; abbrev. CT/DZ) and more recently reproduced and utilized in the Historical Companion to the Daozang (2004; abbrev. HCDZ). When the text in question is a commentary, I include the author (if known) in parentheses. I also have kept the characters as they appear in each title.
